Forest Glamping resort Blaguš is a new glamping resort in Slovenia, welcoming its first guests in the 2020 season.

It is a peaceful location by Blaguš Lake in the heart of the Slovenian mountains, where 16 glamping cabins made of a combination of wood and glass and 33 wooden double-roofed cabins are available for guests in a beautiful natural environment.

The location of the Forest Glamping Resort Blaguš is designed for those who want to relax in nature, get away from the stresses and strains of everyday life and connect with partners and friends.

You can enjoy nature, listen to the birds chirping, walk barefoot through the leaves and read a book you borrowed from the forest library while lying in the grass.

The 16 larger glamping chalets for 2 people are stylishly furnished with a double bed, a relaxation area and a private patio.

A special feature of these larger chalets is the panoramic lake-view window, as the chalets are set right next to the lake.

For the slightly more adventurous guests who appreciate the "back to nature" concept, there are also 33 smaller wooden chalets with double beds only.
